DXC Procurement Solution addresses business issues

Issue	DXC Procurement Solution
Invoices are processed and paid before goods are received or services completed.	Use three-way matching to ensure that an invoice cannot be processed until goods or services have been received.
Invoices are received and there is no matching purchase order.	Ensure that all purchase requests start with a requisition and are fully approved before a PO is created and the order is placed.
Purchases are made from varied vendors and without appropriate controls and approvals.	Purchase from approved websites with contracted pricing, fill a shopping cart and automatically create a requisition from the cart. Control from whom the users are buying.
Requests for quotes must be submitted before determining from whom to purchase, and the responses have to be retained for historical records.	Implement unique workflows and send out RFQs directly, tracking the responses.
Expenses are not filed in a timely manner, and receipts are getting lost.	Take a picture of receipts on a phone to create an expense transaction on the go. All receipts are electronically attached and visible to reviewers.
There is a lack of visibility into where a document is in the approval process and/or whether a payment has been made.	Get complete visibility into the status of documents. All activity is date, time and user stamped, and email notifications can be issued.
There is no audit trail on how long a document is waiting for approval, and delinquent approvers hold up processes.	See the approval audit trail, including a date and time stamp at each step of the approval process. Email reminders are sent to the approver.
Users enter incorrect data into transaction screens.	Simplify entry screens by hiding fields, adding fields to track additional information, or restricting fields to read-only.
Payables staff spends too much time entering or correcting general ledger (GL) distribution coding on invoices and expense reports.	Auto-assign GL codes based on department, project, vendor, item, etc.
Approvals are often delayed due to time spent out of the office.	Approve from anywhere via email, phone or tablet.
